POSTMASTER WAAL ON POSTAL SAVINGS

Arthur Waal, postmaster of Lahaina, Maui, in remitting his yearly subscription to the Postmaster's Advocate, Washington, writes a long letter to J. W. McKinley, its editor and publisher, who prints it in his paper. After stating the business in hand, Mr. Waal makes the following observations on the proposal to establish a national savings bank, with added remarks on the positions of second and third class postmasters, the Lahaina office being of third class:

"It is with pleasure I note that our present Postmaster General has taken the most aggressive position in favor of the Postal Savings Bank, and I hope that at this session Congress will seriously consider and authorize him to establish same in the near future.

"I entered the postal service ten years ago as postmaster at this place, and was postmaster two years prior to the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands to the United States. We then had a Postal Savings Bank.

"It may be of special interest to you to know that in the days of the monarchy the legislature of 1884 established a Postal Savings Bank, which was opened for business on the first day of July, 1886, with His Majesty Kalakaua as first depositor. That this was a most successful institution is shown by the fact that on August 12, 1898, there were 10,555 depositors, with a total deposit of $914,047.34. Through this institution, with the security of the whole Government behind it, people of small means were enabled safely to invest their funds.

"From personal experience the foreigners here, especially the Japanese, are sending their earnings home, that they may be deposited in the Postal Savings Banks of their native country. It is sufficient to say that the many foreigners here in the territory of Hawaii, who are accustomed to the Postal Savings Bank at home, would use the system here if it were established. One benefit the Postal Savings Banks would bestow not only on individuals, but on the country as a whole, is the bringing to light of the hoarded wealth which is not on deposit in any bank today.

"The announcement that the post office will receive saving deposits and will pay interest thereon will be sufficient. The post office is already known to every boy and girl, every man and woman in our land. No special inquiries as to the character of the institution; as to whether their savings will be placed in safe hands; the Government of the United States is well known as to character, responsibility and business habits. Absolute security for the faith and credit of the United States stands pledged for the safe return of the deposit. Under such conditions who can deny the Postal Savings Bank would be a popular and successful institution from the start.

"I am in favor of the extension of the parcel post, and in my opinion every postmaster should be the same. It is certainly within reason that we should have it. I believe it is the duty of the government to give to the American people at least as low a rate as is given foreigners under the present condition.

"I am, and my brother postmasters should be, heartily in favor of the recommendation of our present Postmaster General in the appointment of postmasters of second and third-class offices by him. We should also be placed under the civil service law.

"To be able to discharge the intricate duties of a postmaster of a second or third class office to the satisfaction of the government and the people it requires a man of practical education, and one of more than ordinary ability and personal energy. Our duties are necessarily closer to the people of their respective communities than any other class of officials of the government, and when they shall have once acquired a perfect knowledge of the various duties of their office, their trained service becomes more or less indispensable to the government and the people, and their removal should be subject only to the will of the Postmaster General, and not to the change of political condition and party strife and speculation.

"Be a business postmaster, eager to please. Apply business principles to your office. We must please and be courteous to all our patrons, and I am positive that we will meet with success; that is the bull's eye at which I am aiming. I have no experience in writing letters for publication, and if any of my brother postmasters feel like criticizing this letter, why, fire away. Let me hear, through the Advocate, what you have to say. Trusting that your efforts may be productive of much good to us all."

WHY?

The Baltimore Sun objects to giving representation in Democratic national conventions to Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines, and argues that they should not be allowed to help in shaping national platforms and naming Presidential candidates. But why discriminate among the political units in our system not vested with electoral votes? If Hawaii ought not to have representation, why should Arizona, Alaska or the District of Columbia have it?—New York Tribune.

WARSHIP CALLS 500 MILES OFF

"Have you any wireless? Say, you steamer! Have you any wireless? This is HC. Answer, please.

HC.
Harking patiently, testing industriously, his ears 'phoned for hours at a time, Wireless Expert Arthur A. Isbell at 9 o'clock last night arrested a vagrant ethergram, a cry over the watery waste for companionship, from the United States battleship Maine.

"Have you any wireless? Have you any wireless?"
As soon as Isbell sensed the interrogation he wanted to spark back to the unknown, whose distance he knew not, that he had all kinds of wireless, but remembered that while he had power to receive from as yet unknown distances, he had, at the Kahuku station, no way of getting back and he, perforce, was dumb.

Who could it be feeling out from somewhere to touch someone for a reply. It might be a ship in distress making a dying statement!
It is not known if Isbell ever says "damn," but if he did he should be excused when his powerlessness to talk back on such an occasion is realized. But it was only for a moment, his anxiety, for then came the rest of the message.
"Say, you steamer! Have you any wireless?"
"Whoever it is talking has picked up a light or lights and is near enough to make out she's a steamship," thought Isbell.

"This is HC. Please answer, HC."
Quickly Isbell referred to the station card on his desk. HC was the battleship Maine.

Five minutes elapsed and then the Maine called again, and again, until she was tired and her operator presumably concluded that whatever light was seen was that of a boat unwireless.

There could have been nothing wrong with the Maine, or she would have mentioned it in her feeble, in hope that something would catch the message.

The signals were strong and well received, being a distinct and a splendid spark.

The Maine left San Francisco with the Alabama in the morning of June 8 and is looked for here tomorrow evening, or Wednesday morning, as they are steaming at about 10 knots.

At 9 o'clock last night, when Kahuku caught the Maine's question, that battleship was between 400 and 500 miles from this port. It is just possible that the lights seen by the Maine were those of the S. S. Mongolia which sailed for San Francisco at 4 p. m., Saturday, and which would, at 9 o'clock last night, have been 420 miles from this port.

Every member of the St. Louis Alumni Association is earnestly requested to be present at the Club House at 9:30 a. m., Wednesday, June 17, 1908, for the purpose of attending the funeral services of the late Hon. August Dreier.

COASTWISE BILL WILL PASS IN DECEMBER

Washington, D. C., May 30, 1908.

EDITOR STAR:—The closing week of Congress has brought one more victory for Hawaii in the passage of my Passenger Transportation Bill by the House on Thursday.

That it should have passed by a vote of more than three to one was particularly gratifying in view of an aggressive personal campaign made against the bill by the California delegation. The friends of Hawaii stood by me loyally in the fight, and a number of them did personal canvassing for the bill to offset the similar work being done in opposition.

Strenuous efforts were made by the opposition to get two of the particular champions of American shipping to turn against my bill; but they refused to change their attitude, giving as their reason the fact that we had accepted an amendment to put the bill in the least objectionable form, and that we had not pressed our bill for passage until the mail subsidy measure was finally defeated.

The support of my bill by these known friends of American shipping influenced many doubtful members and it is very certain that they could have defeated it if we had pressed it in its original form against their opposition.

The time limitation in the debate did not admit of speeches by the dozen or more men who helped me to rally the votes; neither did it allow time to answer some of the unfounded statements made by Mr. Kahn in opposition.

The personal attitude of members, as well as the decisive vote, shows that the House, as well as the committee, recognizes the unusual conditions requiring this legislation and do not regard it as any attack on the American protective system.

Members of Congress in general agree with my contention that protection does not mean deprivation; and that the Protective system was never designed to deprive American citizens of any commodity. A full report of the debate will be found in the Record of May 28.

Owing to the existing status of business in the Senate, my bill cannot receive consideration by that body before its final adjournment tonight. But I have strong assurance that the bill will be promptly passed when the Senate reassembles in December.

The Omnibus Territories bill which contained the Wailua Water Company franchise, and the two Maui electric franchisees had a stormy career in the Senate and finally failed of enactment. Owing to the illness of Senator Foraker, his committee was unable to get a quorum together to consider our bills, and they were reported to the Senate by a poll of the committee. This procedure has often followed before, but this time it was objected to on the floor of the Senate, and the two Maui franchise bills were stricken out of the omnibus bill together with one Alaskan bill; the Wailua Water Co. franchise was permitted to remain in, because it had been considered regularly in committee.

Owing to the fact that this omnibus bill did not pass the Senate until late in the evening, it was practically impossible to have it engrossed and acted upon by the House before the hour agreed on for adjournment, and it will consequently lie on the Speaker's table till Congress reconvenes in December; at that time we can doubtless have the two Maui bills reintroduced in conference; meantime the Wailua bill is safe, having now passed both houses and only awaiting agreement on other parts of the omnibus bill.

Very truly yours,
J. KALANIAN'AOLE,
delegate to Congress.

RING MADE MASCOT FOR THE FLEET

ARRANGEMENTS FOR GLOVE CONTESTS DURING THE VISIT OF THE NAVY BOYS.

A corps of carpenters is busily hammering away in Independence hall today, getting the place in readiness for the fistic carnival which is planned to take place during the stay of the United States battleships Maine and Alabama.

One of the finest rings that has ever been seen in Honolulu is being constructed and chairs sufficient to accommodate close on to a thousand spectators are being placed in the building.

The place will be well lighted by electricity and no effort will be spared to make the spectators as comfortable as possible.

Until the battleships arrived it will be impossible to say just who are the boxers who will oppose the local men. It is known, however, that there are some very good glove artists aboard and no difficulty will be experienced in securing a high grade of ring talent.

Young Nelson will attend to the needs of any visiting lightweight, and Patt and Murphy of Fort Shafter will settle it between themselves, as to who will have the honor of defending the local middleweight title. Another boy who may be seen in the ring is Peter Stanley, who made such a good impression with his recent bag-punching exhibition at the Orpheum.

The first card will in all probability be pulled off on Wednesday night and another on Saturday.

FRIDAY'S STAR HAD IT RIGHT

In regard to the statement appearing in the morning paper that the County Executive Committee of Maui had refused to endorse Joseph H. Kunewa for the position of Tax Assessor of the County of Maui there seems to be a misunderstanding. The committee did not refuse to endorse him. The nomination by the Treasurer was simply taken under consideration, and the members, feeling that the Maui people would be better satisfied if a man from their own island was named offered three more names, as stated exclusively in the Star on Friday.

In the face of the lack of action on the part of the Maui Committee, the Territorial Central Committee has taken action and has notified Treasurer Campbell of its endorsement of Kunewa. There has been no appointment made as yet, but the matter will probably be taken up with Governor Frear in the near future.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 5.—Captain Frank Hall is again in command of the transport Buford and will take the troopship to sea today, bound for Honolulu, Guam and the Philippines. For ten days following the arrival of the Buford from Manila, the latter part of May, Captain Hall was under suspension without pay in consequence of the alleged violation of a new rule that had been promulgated by Colonel Belinger, in charge of the transport service here, that transport masters after passing quarantine, must await his orders at the station. Master mariners are incensed at Belinger's action in the matter.

AGRICULTURAL EXPERTS ARRIVE

MR. WILCOX SUCCEEDS JARED G. SMITH—DEPUTY CHIEF OF BULLAR STATIONS

Earley Vernon Wilcox arrived in the Manchuria to take the position, resigned by Jared G. Smith after more than seven years' incumbency, of agent in charge of the Hawaii Experiment Station.

Mr. Wilcox has been connected with the department of Agriculture as the editor of the Experiment Station Record since 1899. He was born in Buell, N. Y., February 16, 1860; and has been actively engaged in entomology, zoology and biology since his graduation at Harvard in 1882. From 1886 to 1891 Mr. Wilcox was assistant entomologist at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, and from 1891 to 1899 was professor in biology and state entomologist at Bozeman, Mont.

Dr. Walter Harrison Evans, chief of the Division of Insular Stations in the Department of Agriculture, is another arrival in the Manchuria. After spending a short time here looking over the work of the Experiment Station and sub-stations he will proceed to Guam, establishing a station there, from thence going to the Philippines.

Dr. Wilson has been associate edi-
